

The RTI Cell was established by SPIPS in accordance with government guidelines. The main goals of the Right to Information Act are to empower citizens, encourage accountability and openness in government operations, combat corruption, and ensure that our democracy truly serves the needs of the people.

The cell is managed by a public information officer (PIO). Under the RTI Act of 2005, interested parties may obtain any information about the college by completing the appropriate application form and paying the required cost with an Indian postal order (IPO). The cell maintains a database of different quarries that are periodically received under the RTI Act.
